The McCormick News, in speaking of the business houses of that town, says this about Messrs. McCully & Fretwell: 'Although this firm has been among us only about a year and a half, they have built up an enormous trade and made a host of friends. Both gentlemen are natives of Anderson, S. C., but they have decided to make McCormick their perma-nent home. As we said, they do an enormous business, having sold over $20,000 worth of goods since the first o January. They will more than double this amount between now and Fall, mak ing their business for this year amount to $50,000."

The Atlanta Constitution is making an effort to build and endow a home in that city for the old and disabled Confederate soldiers, and up to last Sunday about $40,000 had been subscribed by the good people of Georgia for the noble enterprise. people of Georgia for the noble enterprise.
The Constitution publishes every day the list of subscribers, and among them we find the following from Mr. Will. Wilkes, of Atlanta, an old Anderson boy, who in making his contribution, says: "I cannot afford not to subscribe to the Confederate Home. My father was killed at the battle of Monages as we also my wife's tle of Manassas, as was also my wife's father. Please put my name down for five dollars and my wife's name down for five dollars. I wish I was able to give ten times as much." To this the Constitution adds: "The body of Mr. Wilkes' fathe was robbed on the battlefield of every thing valuable, including his pocketbook which contained a number of personal papers, which were valueless to anyone else. Only a few days ago Mr. Wilkes re-ceived the pocket-book through the mails, accompanied by an anonymous note, which simply explained that it had been taken from his father's body on the batlefield. All the papers were in the book just as they were when it was taken from the dead soldier's body twenty-four years ago." Mr. Wilkes' father, Gen. S. M. Wilkes, was a prominent lawyer of Anderson, and entered the war from this place. At the time that he was killed he was Adjutant of the Fourth Regiment, and was greatly beloved by all of his old soldiers. When he left home to enter the service he told his good wife that he would die before he would ever surrender to the enemy, and sure enough he did. At the first battle of Manassas he rode off alone to a spring, a short distance away to get a drink of water, and while there a squad of yankees rode up and asked him to surrender. He refused, and at the same time pulled his pistols. The enemy fired at him, and he in turn fired at them His body was riddled with bullets, bu before he fell from his horse he had killed two yankees. It was then that his body was robbed, the enemy stealing even the boots off of his feet. His old comrades say that the Confederate service did not have a brayer or more gallant soldier.

The Greenville News, of last Saturday,

James R. Bryce, of Walhalla, son of M. H. Bryce, the Republican County Chairman of Oconee, has been appointed railway postal clerk on the Greenville & Walhalla route, vice N. L. Fant, removed. repared, and he will probably take charge of the place next week.

Information of this change was re-ceived at the post office here yesterday, and was somewhat of a surprise. Mr. Fant is one of the most painstaking, faithful and efficient route agents in the State, and his removal will be regretted by his many friends here.

We endorse every word the News says about Mr. Fant. He was born and reared in Anderson, and we have known him intimately since his childhood days. He is a sober, upright worthy, young man, and in the discharge of his duties is always courteous and accommodating. Indeed, we doubt if there is in the service. of the government a more excellent young man, one who did his duties more faithfully and courteously. Mr. Fant en-tered the service of the government as a clerk in the Anderson Postoffice, under Mrs. Grace G. Cochran, who was then Postmistress. When Mr. Webb was ap-pointed Postmaster, Mr. Fant continued to serve as chief clerk until he received his appointment as postal clerk on the railroad. The Garden Seed business is being well done and well pushed this season, and we done and well pushed this season, and we are taking a lively hand. Prices are cut down pretty close, and each dealer is vieing with the other to see who can come the nearest selling them for nothing. The main thing to be considered is to be sure you get them from a reliable man, who huys from reliable growers, and has fresh Seed We have already made our second order this season, and are in the market to stay and see it out. We handle Landreth's Seed exclusively,

We handle Landreth's Seed exclusively, get the best prices and discounts, and can compete with anybody—even Landreth himself. This is big talk, but we mean business, and if you don't believe it try us and him, and we save you the freight.

We invite men who peddle Seed through the country to bring their quotations to us, and we guarantee to duplicate any prices they may have from any reliable house anywhere, and we save them the freight. This proposition applies also to merchants throughout the County. We handle none but fresh Seed, with the date printed on each package, and we mean business. We each package, and we mean business. We buy as cheap as anybody, we are satisfied with as little profit as anybody, and will sell as cheap as anybody. So don't fail to see or communicate with us, and we think we can save you money. Our place is McCully's Corner.
